On this page, enter the number of program completers by the subject area in which they were prepared to teach, and by their academic majors. Note that an individual can be counted in more than one academic major and subject area. For example, if an individual is prepared to teach Elementary Education and Mathematics, that individual should be counted in both subject areas. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major or subject area, you may leave the cell blank. Please use the "Other" category sparingly, if there is no similar subject area or academic major listed. In these cases, you should use the text box to describe the subject area(s) and/or the academic major(s) counted in the "Other" category.

If your IHE offers both traditional and alternative programs, be sure to enter the program completers in the appropriate reports. For the traditional report, provide only the program completers in traditional programs within the IHE. For the alternative report, provide only the program completers for the alternative programs within the IHE.

After entering the teachers prepared data, save the page using the floating save box at the bottom of the page.

What are CIP codes? The Classification of Instructional Programs (CIP) provides a taxonomic scheme that supports the accurate tracking and reporting of fields of study and program completions activity. CIP was originally developed by the U.S. Department of Education's National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) in 1980, with revisions occurring in 1985, 1990, and 2000 (<https://nces.ed.gov/ipeds/cipcode/Default.aspx?y=55>).

Teachers Prepared by Academic Major

Please provide the number of teachers prepared by academic major for academic year 2023-24. For the purposes of this section, number prepared means the number of program completers. "Academic major" refers to the actual major(s) declared by the program completer. An individual can be counted in more than one academic major. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major, please leave that cell blank. \(\$205\(b\)\(1\)\(H\)\)

Please note that the list of majors includes several "Teacher Education" majors, as well as several noneducation majors. Please use care in entering your majors to ensure education-specific majors and non-education majors are counted correctly. For example, if an individual majored in Chemistry, that individual should be counted in the "Chemistry" academic major category rather than the "Teacher Education–Chemistry" category.

8. Describe your institution’s most successful strategies in meeting the assurances listed above:

Taylor University Transition to Teaching candidates obtain training in the areas addressed in the previous items. Licensure in Indiana requires that the university “include methods for teaching English as a new language...” While our TTT program now offers an English as a New Language and Mild Intervention licensure programs which specifically focus upon some of these categories, all prospective teachers do not obtain this licensure Because of this, most all education courses include readings, assignments, and discussions on teaching a variety of students including various ethnicities, races, SES levels, and disabilities. For example, all TTT licensure candidates take an introductory education class, educational psychology class, and a course addressing exceptional children where these topics are woven into course study. Pre student teaching field experiences in courses help prepare candidates for working with all students. In addition, all candidates are required to have clinical experience in diverse school settings. These issues are also addressed during the student teaching experience.

Annual Goals: Mathematics

Each institution of higher education (IHE) that conducts a traditional teacher preparation program (including programs that offer any ongoing professional development programs) or alternative route teacher preparation program, and that enrolls students receiving Federal assistance under this Act, shall set annual quantifiable goals for increasing the number of prospective teachers trained in teacher shortage areas designated by the Secretary or by the state educational agency, including mathematics, science, special education, and instruction of limited English proficient students.

Assessment Pass Rates

The pass rates table is populated from files provided by the testing company or state. The table provides information on the performance of the students in your teacher preparation program on each teacher credential assessment used by your state. In cases where a student has taken a given assessment more than once, the highest score on that test is used. In the case of a teacher preparation program with fewer than 10 scores reported on any single initial teacher credential assessment during an academic year, the program shall collect and publish information with respect to an average pass rate and scaled score on each state credential assessment taken over a three-year period. \(§205\(a\)\(1\)\(B\)\)

Please note that this page does not have an edit feature as the pass rates have already been through several rounds of verification. If you identify an error, please contact RTI's Title II Support Center and your testing company representative.

Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the four elements listed above are not currently in place.

Technology is an ever-changing resource for educators today, and Taylor University works to prepare teachers to integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction and to use technology to increase student learning. Because our program is completely online, technology proficiency is essential. All courses in the program implement technology, with specific emphasis placed within the elementary and secondary methods classes, in which candidates are expected to develop and apply technology, including digital resources such as web quests, digital-teaching presentations, and applications. All candidates are required to develop a student teaching electronic portfolio by which candidates document mastery of InTASC principles. One requirement of the student teaching portfolio is to demonstrate the effective use of technology in the classroom in a way that enhances student learning. Another requirement is to document, chart, and analyze P12 student learning using data, using the results in a reflective context to allow the candidate to improve instruction. Additional updates to technology courses include the use of AI in the classroom and as a teacher assistance tool. Responsible use of AI is emphasized.

Provide the following information about your teacher preparation program.

Teacher Training

1. Provide a description of the activities that prepare general education teachers to:

a. Teach students with disabilities effectively

All alternative licensure candidates are introduced to the concept of P12 students with disabilities in TTT 510, Introduction to the Education Profession. Further concept development occurs in TTT 520, Educational Psychology. All candidates take SED 520, Exceptional Children, which addresses students with disabilities, gifted and talented students, and culturally and linguistically diverse students. Activities include chapter readings, test items, accommodations lesson plan, videos of special education teachers presenting information on needs, accommodations, instructional techniques, and behavior of students in special education. Candidates are required to write a narrative summary of an interview of a teacher who works with students with special needs or a parent of a student with special needs. There are numerous other assignments in Exceptional Children, including IRIS modules of case studies and assessing students with special needs. Candidates in SED 520 complete a disability simulation and write a paper on their experiences. Special education topics are also addressed in the elementary program in the methods class, in addition to the two literacy and assessment classes. In the secondary program, special education topics and issues are also addressed in the general methods class. Our TTT program also offers a path to Mild Intervention licensure. In this track, each special education course builds on the previous course so that upon completion of the program, prospective teachers are well prepared to teach students with exceptionalities. SED 525, detailed above, provides a base for working with students with exceptionalities. SED 530, Foundation of Special Education, continues to build knowledge base teaching individuals with disabilities; special education law is covered regarding the education of students with disabilities; emphasis is on early childhood interventions Requirements include: videos of various individuals with disabilities to learn first person accounts; hands on in-class activities in which students actively participate as either a student with a disability or a teacher; service project volunteering in a community organization with individuals with disabilities; field experience in a special education preschool classroom. SED 540, Assessment in Special Education, teaches prospective teachers about the assessment process for qualifying students with disabilities for special education, and SED 550 Behavior Management, focuses on behavior strategies to implement for students with emotional/behavioral disabilities In SED 555, Methods of Special Education, prospective teachers learn instructional strategies for facilitating learning for students with disabilities; students also learn the components of an IEP and how to write one.

b. Participate as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

Candidates in SED 520, Exceptional Children, and SED525, Educating Exceptional Learners, learn about the requirements of IDEA, the process of creating an IEP, what is included in an IEP, and the roles of the IEP team members, in addition to videos of special education teachers who give advice on working as a member of an IEP team. Candidates submit an assignment on the IEP process and answer test questions on the videos and chapter readings.

c. Effectively teach students who are limited English proficient.

All Transition to Teaching candidates are introduced to the concept of P12 students who are culturally and linguistically diverse in TTT 510 Introduction to the Education Profession. Further concept development occurs in TTT 520 Educational Psychology. In addition, there are readings and assignments in SED 520, Exceptional Children. Activities include chapter readings, test items, a multicultural lesson plan, reflections on culturally responsive teaching, and readings and an assignment on restorative justice Candidates complete IRIS modules on working with students who are culturally or linguistically diverse. Topics on working with limited English proficient and culturally diverse students are also addressed in the elementary program in the methods class, in addition to the two literacy and assessment classes. In the secondary program, topics and issues on working with students who are limited English proficient and culturally diverse are also addressed in the general methods class. This is a growing licensure track in our TTT program as we strive to meet the needs of English language learners. Being aware of the needs of English language learners in woven throughout the program, in courses such as TTT560, which focuses on early literacy skills. Specifically, we also offer a TTT track that leads to licensure in English as a New Language. This program requires courses including TSL501, Introduction to Second Language Acquisition and the Field of TESOL; TSL503, Methods and Assessment in TESOL; TSL 505, Pedagogical Grammar and Applied Linguistics in TESOL; and TSL 510, Teaching ELL in the P12 Classroom.

2. Does your program prepare special education teachers?

- ☒ Yes
☐ No

If yes, provide a description of the activities that prepare special education teachers to:

a. Teach students with disabilities effectively

Each special education course builds on the previous course so that upon completion of the program, prospective teachers are well prepared to teach students with disabilities. •SED 525: Build knowledge base regarding the disabilities identified in IDEA. Requirements include: videos of various individuals with disabilities to learn first person accounts; hands on in-class activities in which students actively participate as either a student with a disability or a teacher; a disability simulation; research paper regarding a self-selected disability category. •SED 530: Continue to build knowledge base teaching individuals with disabilities; special education law is covered regarding the education of students with disabilities; emphasis is on early childhood interventions Requirements include: videos of various individuals with disabilities to learn first person accounts; hands on in-class activities in which students actively participate as either a student with a disability or a teacher; service project volunteering in a community organization with individuals with disabilities; field experience in a special education preschool classroom •SED 540: Assessment of Exceptional Learner: Prospective teachers learn the assessment process for qualifying students with disabilities for special education services. Requirements include: videos of various individuals with disabilities to learn first person accounts; hands on in-class activities in which students actively participate as either a student with a disability or a teacher; field experience in an elementary or high school special education classroom in which various assessments related to the evaluation process are administered and then scored. Students are required to write a comprehensive report of all of the assessments given. •SED 550: Behavior Management & Disorders: Focus is on behavior strategies to implement for students with emotional/behavioral disabilities. Requirements include: videos of various individuals with disabilities to learn first person accounts; hands on in-class activities in which students actively participate as either a student with a disability or a teacher; field experience in an elementary or secondary special education classroom in which a functional behavioral assessment is given and a behavior intervention plan is written; students are also required to write an IEP for a behavior disability •SED 555: Methods of Special Education: Prospective teachers learn instructional strategies for facilitating learning for students with disabilities; students also learn the components of an IEP and how to write one. Requirements include: videos of various individuals with disabilities to learn first person accounts; hands on in-class activities in which students actively participate as either a student with a disability or a teacher; field experience in an elementary or secondary special education classroom in which students implement instructional strategies learned in the course; university lesson plans are required; IEP for an academic area is required. TTT 560: Early Literacy Experiences and Assessments: K-3: This course focuses upon the teaching and assessment of literacy in the early elementary classroom. Topics incorporate techniques and methods for the instruction and assessment of the five essential components of reading: phonemic awareness, phonics, vocabulary, fluency, and comprehension. Spelling and writing instruction are embedded. Course includes diagnostic and progress monitoring and the analysis of assessment data. It includes instruction on the components of scientifically based reading interventions that are direct, explicit, and multi-sensory. Includes a field experience component.

b. Participate as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

First, prospective teachers learn the requirements of IDEA (SED 520, SED 530). Prospective teachers are required to write comprehensive reports which would be presented at a Case Conference Committee meeting. Prospective teachers are required to write IEPs for a student with a behavior disability as well as one with a learning or intellectual disability. Prospective teachers participate in several mock case conferences, taking on different roles each time. The requirements of IDEA are integrated throughout all activities and courses.

c. Effectively teach students who are limited English proficient.

All candidates are introduced to the concept of P-12 students who are culturally and linguistically diverse in TTT510 Introduction to the Education Profession and in TTT520 Educational Psychology. In addition, there are readings and assignments in SED 520 Exceptional Children. Activities include chapter readings, test items, reflections on culturally responsive teaching, and readings on restorative justice. Topics on working with limited English proficient and culturally diverse students are also addressed in the elementary program in the methods class as well as the two literacy and assessment classes. In the secondary program, topics and issues on working with students who are limited English proficient and culturally diverse are also addressed in the general methods class.

Contextual Information

Please use this space to provide any additional information that describes your teacher preparation program(s). You may also attach information to this report card (see below). The U.S. Department of Education is especially interested in any evaluation plans or interim or final reports that may be available.

Taylor University is an evangelical, independent, interdenominational Christian liberal arts college. It was organized in 1846 in Fort Wayne, Indiana, as Fort Wayne Female College. In 1890, it changed its name to Taylor University in honor of Bishop William Taylor; and in 1893 moved its main campus to Upland, Indiana. As an interdenominational Christian institution, Taylor's mission is to educate men and women for lifelong learning and for ministering the redemptive love of Jesus Christ to a world in need. All Taylor University education programs hold to a Christian world view and are characterized by the integration of faith and learning. Taylor University Education Department's mission is to "Develop Competent, Caring, and Reflective Teachers Prepared for World Service." The belief that teachers who have experienced professional preparation within the framework of evangelical Christian values will have a profound influence on the students they teach in public, private and/or overseas schools pervades the education program. Taylor University began the Transition to Teaching program in fall 2002 in response to a state mandate for every teacher training institution in the state of Indiana to develop an alternative path to teacher education. It was housed on the Taylor University Fort Wayne campus. When Taylor University's Board of Trustees closed the Fort Wayne campus in May 2009, the Transition to Teaching program was brought to the Upland campus to be housed in the Education Department. In 2011, the Indiana State Legislature changed the mandate to optional for providing a Transition to Teaching program for every teacher-training institution in the state of Indiana. Because TTT was a growing, successful program at Taylor University, the university decided to continue offering it as an alternative path to teacher licensure. Beginning with the fall 2009 semester, the Transition to Teaching program became an online program at the graduate level. Responsibility for the technology segment of the program rests with the Director of Taylor University Online while responsibility for the education component of the program rests with the Director of Transition to Teaching/Online Licensure Programs through the Education Department on the Upland Campus. Taylor University is proud to offer five licensure tracks: elementary (K-6), secondary (5-12), All Grade (P12), Mild Intervention (P12), and TESOL (P12). Program requirements are as follows: Elementary Track Requirements for admission: • Baccalaureate degree from an accredited postsecondary educational institution with a grade point average of at least 3.0 on a 4.0 point scale or • Both a baccalaureate degree from an accredited postsecondary educational institution with a grade point average of at least 2.50 on a 4.0 point scale, and five (5) years of professional experience; or • If GPA is below 2.50, need both a baccalaureate degree from an accredited postsecondary educational institution and proof of passing state approved content area examination(s) in the subject area (two elementary generalist tests) Courses: The courses below are required for this 24 credit hour Transition to Teaching program.
